

At Adams Realty Group, we're known for honest communication, a strong work ethic, and responsive support for both sellers and buyers across Southwest Ohio and that's exactly how I approach my business every day.

I believe choosing a real estate agent is about more than credentials or experience...it's about trust, alignment, and confidence. My role is to bring practical guidance and clear, consistent communication to every step of the process, so you always know where you stand and what comes next.

My goal is simple: to help you find the right fit for your life, your goals, and your future... through a process that feels personal, straightforward, and built on trust. I don't see this as just a transaction. I see it as a partnership, and I'm fully invested in your outcome.

As a husband, father of three, and active member of the West Chester and Liberty Township community, I bring a grounded, real-world perspective to the work I do. That carries into every client relationship, where integrity, care, and attention to detail aren't optional—they're expected.

My background combines both education and discipline. I earned my real estate education through Hondros College, hold an MBA from Indiana Wesleyan University, and received my Bachelor of Science from Wilmington College, where I competed in both football and baseball. Those experiences helped shape the work ethic and competitive mindset I bring to my clients today.

I combine experience, strong negotiation, and a competitive edge to give my clients an advantage. Because in this market, having the right strategy and execution doesn't just help....it makes all the difference.

At the end of the day, my success only follows yours. It would be an honor to partner with you and help you achieve your goals.
